Hotel Teatro: A Perfect Oasis By Stephen L. Brauns

Life should be calm and peaceful inside, keep the chaos of life outside; so it is at the Hotel Teatro. In a world filled with overnight accommodations of every variety, it is a must to find that unique guest facility that suits your personal preference. If the quaint “boutique” hotel is your preference, then the Hotel Teatro in Denver’s performing arts district is...perfect. From the gentlemen at the front door to the gracious staff at the front desk, guests are treated as they would like to be treated.

Entering the Teatro, one immediately feels the difference. The staff, the hotel itself and the theatre memorabilia bespeak a time of service and elegance unfortunately long passed by most hotel operating companies. The Teatro is subtle calmness; there is nothing to give the impression of large corporate hotel chain. At the Teatro, you are a guest and everyone makes you feel appreciated. It is more than obvious that the owners understand the desire of many to stay at a hotel that is well managed, a place where respect for the customer and service are still valued.

The rooms at the Teatro offer bedding as soft and comfortable as any you could imagine. The beds are triple sheeted in 600-thread-count Frette sheets and the mattress is heavenly comfort. Resting well at the Teatro is not a problem; it is very peaceful. There are several packages available at the Teatro including a Keith Urban ‘Get Closer’ concert package (available October 11th), the Amore package, Visit the Museum package, Kevin Taylor Dining package and many more. Check the hotel’s web site for a full list of special ways to enjoy your stay. One special amenity offered by the Teatro is the option of a bubble bath drawn for you that comes with your very own rubber ducky. Looking for something a little more sophisticated? Try the Scotch and Soak package.

Dining at the Teatro is also a rewarding pleasure. Colorado’s own Kevin Taylor serves his award-winning contemporary French cuisine at the romantic Restaurant Kevin Taylor. Kevin calls his restaurant, “My pride and joy.” His efforts have been recognized for the past eight years, being awarded the AAA Four Diamond award, the Mobil Travel Guide Four Star award and the Wine Spectator’s Best of Award of Excellence. Taylor also operates the Prima Ristorante at the Teatro serving modern Italian as well as breakfast (great scrambled eggs and French toast), brunch, lunch and dinner. Please see the related article about Kevin Taylor on page 14.

A redeeming virtue of inestimable value is the fact that the Hotel Teatro is dog friendly. As publishers of Mile High Dog magazine, we at Indulge find being a dog-friendly hotel a major plus. What more can be said: a peaceful oasis, a superbly professional staff, clouds to sleep on, a rubber duck and bubbles and you can even bring your very favorite four-legged friend.

If you have friends or family in town or maybe just need a weekend escape from the chaos of life, get to the Hotel Teatro. Located in Denver’s Performing Arts district, Teatro is walking distance to fine dining, cocktails, shopping, entertainment, museums and numerous cultural events. Give the Hotel Teatro a try; it’s well worth your time. For more information and reservations, please visit www.hotelteatro.com.
